Concept Driven Computer Education.

Conceptual understanding is key for student success in school, jobs, and life.

Concept-based instruction is driven by “big ideas” rather than subject-specific content. By leading students to consider the context in which they will use their understanding, concept-based learning brings “real world” meaning to content knowledge and skills.

A concept-driven education develops effective approaches to learning; empowering young people for a lifetime of learning, independently and in collaboration with others and preparing a community of learners that engage with global challenges through inquiry, action, and reflection.

Concepts create a culture of thinking that invites students to see connections, contradictions, alternative perspectives, and different ways of thinking.
